Tornado Tears was disappointing and vetted following the event. It was reported that there was no apparent injury found. Stewards spoke to Mr Robert Britton, the trainer of Tornado Tears regarding the performance of the greyhound. Trainer Mr Robert Britton submitted that after Tornado Tears unusually missed the start and then suffered significant interference on the first turn, it was always going to be extremely difficult to catch and pass the other greyhounds, in this class, from that position. Tornado Tears known racing pattern also did not suit being so far back as he almost solely rails and rarely goes to the outside of other greyhounds. It was noted in the run that he appeared to be held up for a run through the fourth turn. The explanation was accepted and agreed to by Stewards, the performance was not unsatisfactory, a urine sample was taken for analysis.

Post-race samples were taken from placegetters - Out Of Range (1st), Neo Cleo (2nd), Rockstar Patriot (3rd) and Tornado Tears (unplaced).
